

BRAVE KILLED NEUTRAL UNION IS ACCUSATION

Chilean Counselor's Report to Pan-American Congress
Opens Secret History.

A powerful league of neutral nations, composed of twenty-one American republics, would now be in existence had it not been for the attitude of former Secretary of State Bryan.

This revelation of the secret history of international conferences of this Administration is made public in an advance copy of a treatise on international law, prepared by Dr. Alejandro Alvarez for the Pan-American Scientific Congress, according to a Washington article of the International News Service.

Suggested Union.

Dr. Alvarez is considered the most brilliant authority on international law in Latin America. He is former counselor of the ministry of foreign affairs in Chile, successor of the Chilean legation in Europe, and delegate from Chile, Costa Rica, and Ecuador to the present congress on international law.

His treatise is published in French, and is called "La Grande Guerre Europeenne et la Neutralite du Chili." In discussing the last conference of the commission on neutrality of the governing board of the Pan-American Union in December, 1914, and January, 1915, he says:

"In order to gain protection against the annoyance (the abuse of neutral rights), the minister from Ecuador presented, in the name of his government, the following motion:

"That a union of American diplomats be convoked with the object that they obtain a declaration from the belligerents to consider the seas bordering upon the coastline of the Americas as a neutral zone, and that the waters be wholly protected from all operations of war which might damage neutral commerce."

"And that, in view of the peril that has resulted from violation of the neutrality of certain nations, it be declared that the neutrality of each one of the nations of America concerned all the others."

Reason for Opposition.

"But the president of the governing board of the Pan-American Union, Mr. Bryan, observed that it was very difficult to put into immediate practice any idea of a system which might, after substantially the international law in force, for such measures would result indirectly in favoring one of the belligerents; that it was not easy to adopt such a procedure without appearing to show partiality."

"The Secretary of the United States added that it was of great importance to study, for the present, the modifications which, based upon experience, could be introduced after the war, into international law."

"Though Dr. Alvarez does not make any further comment on the incident, the correspondent asserts, other diplomats at the conference indicated that Mr. Bryan quashed the entire proposal, though every other member of the conference representing every American republic, save one, was in favor of such a neutrality league."

Turned Down Plan.

They insist Mr. Bryan's statement—that such measures would result indirectly in favoring one of the belligerents—to have reference to Germany, and therefore that he opposed the formation of a neutral league because it might operate in favor of German commerce in the waters.

Dr. Alvarez continues: "After the German government had declared the blockade of France and Great Britain by the means of the submarine, and had given the blockade so absolute a character that all the merchant marine, even that of the neutrals, ran huge risks in the said zone, the government of Chile judged it necessary to revive the idea of a union of all the neutral nations, not only of America, but of Europe, for safeguarding their rights."

"It suggested to its ambassador in Washington that careful study should be given to the form in which the states of America might proclaim themselves in accord on questions of neutrality."

Again, Dr. Alvarez indicates, the Administration turned down the proposition of a league of neutrals. Both before the Pan-American Congress and the American Institute of International Law, in session here this week, Dr. Alvarez urged a close union of neutrals. He desires to have such a league facilitate the consideration and proposal of peace terms to belligerent nations.

Has Specific Plan.

Among South American delegates there is a general feeling that if the United States Government had insisted on neutral rights, and had joined the others in a neutral league a year ago, when first proposed to Mr. Bryan, the war might now be over.

They are of the opinion that the abuse of international law would not have been contemplated. The belligerent nations, from whose selfishness would have been reconsidered their declarations with a view to the commercial situation after the war.

Dr. Alvarez comes to the Pan-American Congress with a specific plan for a union of neutrals. He will propose that as soon as a rupture of negotiations between nations is declared, all the neutrals shall send representatives to an assembly or a commission at The Hague or some other place.

He provides that the first duty of such a commission will be to offer its services as a mediator to prevent or stop the conflict. As soon as hostilities begin, the commission of neutrals shall decree the list of articles which should be declared contraband of war and shall regulate, in effect, the conditions of commerce of the neutrals with the belligerents, to review the actions of those armies, particularly in reference to prisoners' camps, the Red Cross Society, and non-combatants.

Their report shall be made to the commission of neutrals, which shall then make demands, if necessary, on the belligerent who has offended international law.

The commission, he proposes, will serve also as an intermediary for the negotiations for peace.

PHOTOPLAYS AND PHOTOPLAYERS

Jimmy Cruze's 'Merry Christmas' Cost Him The Sum of Thirty Dollars.

Motion pictures being one of the developments of modern science, it is but natural that the people who are connected with the motion picture industry should make use of all the most modern scientific appliances and discoveries when it is to their pleasure or profit to do so.

However, Marguerite Snow received a bit of a Christmas present Saturday in New York that is still causing her to have a dizzy feeling. Washington has about as close an interest in Miss Snow's career as in that of any other motion picture star, for the reason that she went from the post of leading woman of a stock company at the Belasco Theater, in this city, to become a motion picture star. And she was a very popular leading woman here, too.

Likewise, Washington takes something of an interest in James Cruze, another motion picture star, principally because he is the husband of Miss Snow, but also because he has many other likeable qualities. Cruze, at present attached to the Lasky studio forces in Los Angeles, and Miss Snow is with the Metro company in New York acting parts. These two facts must be kept in mind to get the point of the story.

Saturday morning Miss Snow was awakened rather late by the violent ringing of the phone in her apartment. She was told she was wanted on a long distance telephone. When she asked who wanted her, the operator told her her husband wished to speak to her. Miss Snow laughed and thought someone was playing a joke on her. In a minute the unmistakable tones of Jimmy Cruze's voice came over the wire. Miss Snow was startled. She asked him where he was talking from. He told her from the studio in Los Angeles. And he said he wanted to wish her and the baby the merriest Christmas of their lives and exchange a few words with her, if it were three thousand miles apart. That was all the conversation that was had between them, but Miss Snow ascertained from the telephone company that her message was actually from Los Angeles and that her husband just so.

Bessie Barriscale's holiday has been largely taken up in entertaining her friends. There has been open house, and Miss Bessie says she never had so many old-time professional callers before in her life. In the course of her speaking stage career she made numerous friends, and there are so many of them in pictures now. How Hickman says their home is more like a green room than anything else. They both like it, however.

Edna Mason has worked under more directors than any other leading lady. She was recently playing with Henry Otto's direction, but he has taken a holiday. Her services are always in demand, and whenever she is available there are half a dozen of the other directors bidding for her. Her dressing room is like a dressmaker's the day, for with the help of her sister and one or two other girls she is dressing a number of dolls for her little artist friends for Xmas.

Grace Cunard has had to put on an extra pair of legs to get caught up with her correspondence and send off photographs. She has been behind her desk ever since she dared to take a holiday. Miss Cunard really has an enormous mail to cope with, and it is quite a problem at times. Moreover, it entails much expense as well as work, for she never neglects anyone who writes to her.

This Week's Photoplays

EMPRESS.

The Empress, at 416 Ninth street, became the local headquarters for the first showing of pictures of the Fox Film Company, yesterday, with the initial presentation in this city of the newest photoplay, starring Theda Bara, "Destruction." The Fox company has under contract such stars as William Farnum, Dorothy Bernard, Robert Mantell, Genevieve Hammer, Claire Whitney, Jean Sothorn, Stuart Holmes, and others and a new picture will be shown each week.

"Destruction" is a strong drama of the type in which Theda Bara has been previously presented, giving her opportunity for the display of her ability along her special lines. It deals with the labor problems largely, and has especially to do with the conditions in Colorado and New Jersey.

The cast supporting the star includes Gaston Bell, James Furey, Carlton Macey, Esther Hofer, Warner Oland, Herbert Frank, and others. "Destruction" is to be repeated today and a program of special comedy and drama during the remainder of the week.

CRANDALL'S.

"The Labyrinth," a new idea in the dressing up of the favorite theme of dramas and story writers involving the heroine in the life of the stage and of settlements in the slums, was presented at Crandall's today, with Gail Kane as the star by the Equitable company. Miss Kane is given a big opportunity, and with an excellent support, makes the most of it. "The Labyrinth" will be repeated tomorrow.

Wednesday Vivian Martin will be seen in her newest photoplay, "Over Night," which has been done over from the stage play of the same name. This is a sprightly comedy with a more or less serious undercurrent. The World Film Corporation is sponsor for "Over Night."

The World Film Corporation is also responsible for the production of another drama well known to the stage, "The Track," which, as a photoplay, serves as the latest vehicle for the presentation of Alice Brady, and will be shown at Crandall's Thursday and Friday. This drama attracted some attention when first presented on the stage because of its strong emotional character. Miss Brady has been given an excellent company.

A new Vitaphone feature, "The Making Over of Geoffrey Manning," will be the principal photoplay of Saturday's program, with Harry Morey in the principal role.

LEADER.

A story that has to do with canal boats and a circus forms the basis for "Still Waters," in which Marguerite Clark is presented at the Leader Theater today as a part of the Paramount program. Miss Clark has the part of the granddaughter of a canal boat captain. Her mother ran away to marry a circus actor and the child was lost during the moving of the circus from town to town and came in curious fashion to the old canal boatman. "Still Waters" will be seen again tomorrow.

Charles Cherry is to be the star Wednesday and Thursday in the photoplay adaptation of "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," which was such a success when presented by Charles Frohman on the stage. Mr. Cherry is one of the best known of the leading men of the stage, and this is the first photoplay in which he has been seen.

Friday and Saturday Laura Hope Crews is to be seen in the film version of "The Fighting Hero," a strong drama produced on the stage by David Belasco. The play deals with the experiences of a wife married to a man who is sent to prison for embezzlement and who has represented to his wife that he is the victim of circumstances. She discovers his real nature, however, just before he escapes, and is killed while his guards are attempting his capture.

CRANDALL'S APOLLO.

The Jesse L. Lasky feature photoplay, "Out of the Darkness," starring Charlotte Walker, is the first of the Christmas week program to be shown today at Crandall's Apollo Theater, 524 H street, northeast. The play gives Miss Walker a special opportunity, and she is supported by an excellent cast. Tomorrow Robert Warwick will be the star of the program in the World Film Corporation's production, "The Sins of Society."

Francis X. Bushman will be the headliner Wednesday in the first Metro feature in which he appeared with Beverly Bayne, "Pennington's Choice." The play deals with New York society and the Canadian northwest. Thursday John Barrymore will be presented in a film adaptation of "The Incurable Du-kane." Friday there will be a presentation of Irene Fenwick in "The Green Cloak" with a special show beginning at 10:30 p. m. for the benefit of those who wish to watch the old year out at a motion picture theater. New Year's Day Marguerite Clark will be seen in "Helene of the North."

COP'S SLAYERS SAFE; QUIET IN MUSKOGEE

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Dec. 27.—Homer Matthews and Will Williams, the negroes whom Sheriff Barger rescued from a mob here last night, were believed today to be safe in the county jail at Tulsa, or some other nearby city. The mob spirit apparently had died down and little effort was made to trace the slayers and their prisoners.

The two negroes were charged with the murder of Patrolman Sam Neal when the policeman caught one of them coming out of a hardware store about midnight Saturday, carrying a sack. He lived long enough to tell other officers who were nearby, and also describing another negro who was on guard.

Matthews and Williams were arrested on a train near Fort Smith, but only after they had shot at the two detectives who apprehended them.

Montague Flagg, Artist.
Victim of Pneumonia

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Montague Flagg, portrait painter, is dead of pneumonia in a hospital here. He was born in Hartford, Conn., and was in his seventieth year. His father was the late Rev. Dr. Jared B. Flagg. Mr. Flagg studied art under Cassius M. Johnson in Paris, and later settled in New York. His "Portrait of Mr. Wilson" was exhibited at the National Academy of Design in December, 1914, and won the Thomas R. Proctor bonus for the best portrait in the exhibition.

THE BEST Photoplay Department in WASHINGTON

DEPARTMENT PLANS FOR NEW SUBMARINES

Plan Dreadnaughts More Adequately Defended Against Undersea and Air Attacks.

That the United States navy is working on a design of a dreadnaught that will be more adequately defended against submarine and air attack, and that the navy hereafter will have submarines built on its own plans, instead of accepting plans of submarine builders, are striking facts brought out in the annual report of Rear Admiral D. W. Taylor, chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair.

Admiral Taylor does not go into details in outlining the battleship changes, holding that "details of changes of construction are regarded as confidential," but he declares that specifications for the ships next to be purchased have been materially improved, indicating that the changes designed to make the battleship proof against submarines will be given a trial on the next ships built. With reference to the submarine plans it was explained in the report that heretofore the navy merely has asked for bids for U-boats, leaving it to the bidders to furnish the plans. That plan will be abandoned and instead the bureau will submit plans prepared by its own naval constructors. The submarine building companies will be permitted to submit bids based on their own patents and designs, however, and this will give the Navy Department the privilege of choosing between its own and private company submarine designs.

Bureau experts designed the Schley, the big fleet submarine now under construction. The department now is preparing plans in two larger boats. "It is true that the designing and building of submarines is a specialty that requires experience," Admiral Taylor's report says, "but we now have in the navy adequate experience in this connection." The report outlines contemplated improvements at the model basin at Washington navy yard, where hull designs are tested. A device to simulate storm conditions and wave motions is now being installed in the tank as a means of more closely approximating actual conditions at sea.

$100,000 Bridgeport Fire.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 27.—Fire of unknown origin did $100,000 damage to the Constock-Villet Company, wholesale grocers. Two firemen were overcome by the smoke and taken to a hospital.

CLINICS WILL SHOW BABY WELFARE WORK

Educational demonstrations and clinics to acquaint women visitors to the Pan-American Scientific Congress with American methods in child welfare work have been arranged by the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department.

The programs were arranged at the suggestion of the State Department, and will have the cooperation of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society and the Washington Diet Kitchen.

The conferences on infant welfare will be at the headquarters of the Washington Diet Kitchen, at Third and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, directly opposite Washington circle, at 11 a. m. on Wednesday and Friday of this week and on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of next week.

The conferences on child welfare work will be at 1 p. m. tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday of this week and every day except Saturday of next week at the same hour.

At these conferences the methods used in the care of babies and children from a period prior to birth up to the age of six years in American institutions will be shown. The work is practically a continuation of that done under the auspices of the Federal Children's Bureau at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and will be given by the doctors of the Washington Diet Kitchen staff.

The methods of caring for sick babies and children will be demonstrated by members of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society.

Tables loaned by the town and country nursing service of the American Red Cross and the National Society for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality will be used in demonstrating the methods resorted to in the rural districts and small towns for the care of babies and children.

Pupils Spell All Words

In President's Message

NEW PROVIDENCE, Iowa, Dec. 27.—President Wilson's message to Congress contains no errors for Iowa school children, as one of the state's teachers after they had read it, said.

Which the students spelled all the hard words in his message in a recent spelling bee here. New Providence and Union were the schools engaged in the spelling bee.

WAR AVIATORS HERE CANNOT BE INTERNED

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Lawyers who have specialized in international law do not take seriously the suggestion that an article of The Hague Treaty of 1907 requires the United States Government to intern until the end of the war Lieut. William Thaw and Sergeants Elliot C. Cowdin and Norman Linne, Americans serving as flying aviators, who are in this country on an eight-day visit.

"The duty of neutral nations is to disarm and intern belligerent forces who enter neutral territory," said Maurice Leon. "The three men mentioned have come here unarmed—without uniforms—not having been forced by the exigencies of war or on a military expedition, in the capacity of civilian Americans to spend Christmas with their families. If they are subject to internment so also should be the 350,000 German reservists here, not to mention German officers who are not here to spend Christmas with their families. These aviators are not troops in any sense of the word." William Hymer said: "My impression is that the article referred to troops forced in a body into a neutral country by the opposing army, as in the case of parts of the Belgian army in Holland. I think there are a number of British officers here, but no objection has been made to their presence. There would probably be a considerable number of German soldiers here also if it were possible for them to reach here."

The provision of the treaty on which it is insisted that the aviators be interned here until after the war reads as follows:

"A neutral power which receives on its territory troops belonging to belligerent armies shall intern them, as far as possible, at a distance from the theater of war."

ASK DINERS FOR "BIT" FOR BELGIANS RELIEF

Appeal Was Sanctioned by Sir Charles Wakefield, Lord Mayor of London.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Virtually every Christmas dinner table in the British Isles today contained an envelope with a printed request that the diners deposit a "bit" for the relief of Belgium's millions of destitute.

The dinners were distributed by volunteer workers to hotels, restaurants, and private houses.

The appeal was sanctioned by Sir Charles Wakefield, lord mayor of London.

"I am most anxious," he said, "that every one of us who is enjoying a plentiful fare will spare a trifle to provide bread for the destitute Belgians, who, through no fault of their own, are spending a dark Christmas day."
